Information about the town and/or neighborhood	Chiclana de la Frontera in Spain is a large, bustling seaport located to the south of the Cadiz Bay in Andalusia, Spain. It is situated 25 kms from the historic provincial capital of Cadiz and the centre of the town about 6kms inland.

	To the east is the Caño de Sancti Petri River – it separates Chiclana from San Fernando and Cadiz. The idyllic island of Sancti Petri lies on Chiclana’s Atlantic coast. The surrounding landscape is flat, green, natural and untouched and made up of pinewoods and marshlands. There are some spectacular sandy beaches, with La Barrosa among the best in Spain, on the Atlantic coast where you can spend a fantastic beach holiday. Chiclana also enjoys a perfect climate, with the average yearly temperature being around 20 degrees centigrade. The town receives over 3,400 hours of sunshine every year. Like most places on the Costa de la Luz, Chiclana is bright. Its coastline and facilities (hotels, bars, restaurants) have made it into a top quality tourist destination for vacations in Spain. The region was once, one of the most important wine producing regions in Spain, and although wine production has decreased considerably, you can still find excellent quality wines here. The 'Chiclaneros' are very proud of their wine, with their most famous wines are the fine whites and the Muscadets. Also, the sherry wine and muscatel are well worth a sample. Chiclana’s vineyards have become popular tourist attractions. Wine lovers come from all over to sample the product and learn about the history. The wine making process is very traditional, having used the same methods for centuries. https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=DaJ5LoKEX5E More info at : Más información en : https://www.ieslapedrera blanca.es/ Twitter: @ayto_chiclana @chiclana @VivaChiclana
